

John Wookey Joins the Kenandy Board of Directors

Software Veteran Brings Extensive Experience Developing Applications for the Enterprise

REDWOOD CITY—Feb. 26, 2014—Kenandy, Inc., the leader in cloud ERP for the global enterprise, announced today that John Wookey, EVP of Social Applications at salesforce.com, joined the Kenandy Board of Directors. Wookey is a veteran of the software industry, with 30 years of experience in product development, business strategy and organizational management.

"I'm very happy to have John on our board," says Sandra Kurtzig, CEO and Chairman of Kenandy. "He's a visionary, with a unique blend of technical and business skills that result in products that work the way people want to work. With his current role and experience at salesforce.com, as well as his previous experience managing large development organizations at Oracle and SAP, John is a fantastic addition to our board. "

Before working at salesforce.com, Wookey was EVP of Development at SAP, where he was responsible for the development of all On Demand applications. Prior to SAP, Wookey spent 13 years in the applications division at Oracle, starting as the VP of Financial Applications and later taking on overall leadership for its applications business. In addition to leading development, he was responsible for numerous strategic acquisitions including PeopleSoft, J.D. Edwards and Siebel Systems.

"Most large enterprises are still running their businesses on legacy ERP systems. There is tremendous opportunity for these companies to fundamentally improve their performance by moving to modern, cloud-based technologies," says Wookey. "I'm excited to be here because Kenandy anticipated this shift, and is way ahead of the game. They have the world's only complete and integrated ERP solution built on a single platform."
